March 13, 2020

We regret to inform you that our Ski to Defeat ALS event at Winter Park on March 29th has been canceled. We made this difficult decision to protect the health of our families and supporters during the COVID-19 outbreak.

We are sincerely sorry for any inconvenience this cancellation may have caused and we appreciate your understanding as we navigate this challenging situation. Our Ski to Defeat ALS event is a large source of funds that help to provide critical services for our families. To protect the health of our folks living with ALS, we will be moving to virtual support groups and working to keep the loan closet available with quarantine measures in place. This year, these funds are even more critical to our operations as we divert resources to carry us through these new measures.

To this end, for those who would like to continue to fundraise through your networks, we will be holding an online auction that can be shared with the general public through email and social media. We will follow up once the site has been completed with instructions on how to participate and share. All registration tickets purchased will be considered a donation to the Rocky Mountain Chapter. In lieu of cancellation of the event, new tax receipts will be disbursed in the following week recognizing your gift as tax-deductible. If you would like to receive a refund, please contact Jaycee Dahl at jaycee@alsaco.org or by phone at (303) 832-2322.

We are so grateful to have such an incredible group and all the effort made to help raise funds for our programs that are essential to our ALS families.

Sincerely,

Pam Rush-Negri, CEO
